Reg2PHTC-Data2Action1

Data-Based Decision-Making: Using Data to Intervene for Maternal and Child Health (Part One in a Series)

Provider: Region 2 Public Health Training Center and NYSDOH
LMS course: Reg2PHTC-Data2Action1

The purpose of this training is to inform public health professionals how to use data to shape needs assessments, develop public health programs, and provide a framework for program evaluation.

In Part One of this series, learners will take advantage of readily available data sources to begin planning and implementing a successful health program related to issues in maternal and child health using Columbia County, NY as a case study.

After completing this training, you will be able to:

- Identify and locate sources of Maternal and Child Health data in New York State, at state, county, and sub-county levels.
- Use descriptive epidemiology (person, place, and time) in needs assessment and program targeting.
- Use data to identify high-risk populations for program targeting.
